Responsibilities

Architecture:

- define target architectures and future technology direction
- develop and maintain architectural roadmaps
- produce and maintain reference architectures and design patterns
- participate in architecture reviews and governance activities
- support delivery teams in applying architecture principles
- provide guidance on complex technical decisions

Technical Governance:

- support technical assurance forums
- review significant technical decisions
- ensure solutions comply with security, accessibility and operational standards
- assess architectural impacts of proposed change
- identify and manage technical and architectural risks maintain architecture decision records and governance artefacts

Platform and Strategic Direction:

drive adoption of shared platforms, reusable services and common capabilities help the evolution of Digital Services platforms support service consolidation and technology rationalisation initiatives

Engineering and Delivery Support:

work closely with Lead Developers to maintain engineering standards support teams facing complex technical challenges review solution designs and implementation approaches ensure delivery teams understand architectural expectations help balance technical quality, delivery speed and operational sustainability

Stakeholder Engagement:

engage with senior business and technical stakeholders on strategic technology matters translate complex technical concepts into language understood by business audiences represent Digital Services in cross-government, assurance and governance forums influence organisational decision-making through evidence-based technical advice

Capability Development:

develop architectural capability across Digital Services promote Communities of Practice and knowledge sharing establish standards, guidance and architectural artefacts
